ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I wish to acknowledge publicly the help that I have received, in researching and writing this text. I am especially grateful to my research assistants who assisted me in researching the topical areas for certain parts of the book. Ali Javahery, a 1996 graduate of Washburn University School of Law, Topeka, KS, and currently an intern at the Attorney General's Office in Los Angeles, CA, and David Hansen, a 1997 graduate of Washburn were very helpful in researching current statutory and case law and proofing the text for typographical errors.

I am also grateful to Paul Wright, an attorney in private practice, Dublin, Ohio; L. Leon Geyer, a professor in the Department of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Virginia Tech University; Margaret R. Grossman, a professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics at the University of Illinois; Marcia L. Tilley, a professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Oklahoma State University; Terence J. Centner, a professor in the Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics at the University of Georgia; David G. Barton, a professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Kansas State University; and Michael B. Kearns, private practitioner in Manhattan, Kansas, and former Assistant Riley County Attorney, Riley County, Kansas. Each made comments on various chapters of the book and the overall content and structure of the initial version of the book.

Special recognition is due my secretary at Kansas State University, Marcella Budden, who handled all of the word processing and correspondence relating to the creation of the book. All of the original chapters were revised several times and, as is necessary with a textbook of this nature, daily revisions were made to several of the chapters. Her patience in dealing with a sometimes irritable author and seemingly endless pressing deadlines is greatly appreciated. Without her, this project would not have been possible. Beginning with Release 3 (Fall 2016), special thanks to Tammy Haggerty of Navarre, Kansas, for her assistance with word processing, proofing and updating all of the case tables. Her assistance is greatly appreciated.

The input of the Agricultural Law Press, the initial publisher of this text is also appreciated. Many helpful comments concerning style, format and placement of particular areas of content of the text are greatly appreciated.

Finally, I thank my wife, Jean, not only for her encouragement, but simply for putting up with me. For a full-time professor with a major extension appointment at a land grant university, a writing project such as this brings many hundreds of hours of "spare-time" work and occasionally a restless night. My family has certainly shared in the toll that writing this book has taken. However, Jean and my children, Randi and Michael, and our grandchild, Brooklyn, share in my hope that for you the reader, the work on this text will have been worthwhile.

PREFACE

Although legal problems involving agriculture producers, rural landowners and ag-related businesses have existed for centuries, agricultural law has been developed as an area for study largely in the twentieth century. Over the past 60 years, agricultural law courses have been developed and are offered widely at land grant universities, law schools, junior colleges and two-year vocational-technical institutions.

Agricultural law covers a wide array of topics and issues that illustrate the many areas where agriculture intersects the law. The reader will note how the law often treats “agriculture” and “farmers” and “ranchers” in a unique manner. But, the legal concepts and principles addressed in this text have application that is broader than simply to agriculture, and the reader will find that fact apparent upon reading the material.

A one-semester academic course could be created out of many of the individual chapters of this text. However, a one-semester course that covers the full volume (or numerous chapters thereof) can only realistically accomplish the objectives of (1) providing students with an ability to identify legal problems and an understanding of the steps that can be taken to avoid such problems; (2) illustrating how legal decisions are made; and (3) building an appreciation in students for the difficulty inherent in many legal issues based on the facts of each situations, and the various statutory and common-law factors that may be involved in any particular situation. However, a one-semester survey course cannot hold, as an objective, the development of abilities sufficient to yield confidence in one’s own legal problem solving ability. But, students’ awareness of the need for legal counsel should be enhanced, and students should develop an ability to make effective use of available legal materials.

It is my hope that students find the material in this text enjoyable and much more than a mere academic exercise. While numerous college courses don’t have much relevance to real-life situations, that is not true of agricultural law. This text addresses real-life issues faced by real persons. Agricultural law is reality, and students will benefit from having used this text in a course on agricultural law, whether or not they pursue a career in law or in agriculture in general.

As you use this text (instructors, students, lawyers CPAs and others), please let me know of any suggestions for future revisions. I update the full volume twice annually, including copies in use for which the updates are available on a subscription basis. Abridged versions of the full volume are available such that the book can be tailored for any use an instructor may desire. The book is also available on CD and, for instructors and other interested persons, Powerpoint slides are available for each chapter.
